Dramatic Glass Lobby Will Welcome Visitors

One of the most unique architectural structures on the Northern Great Plains is almost complete as part of the ND Heritage Center expansion project. When the doors of the ND Heritage Center open on Sept. 1, 2013, visitors will enter the facility through the stunning 40-foot by 40-foot Northern Lights Lobby. Made of steel and glass, the glass box is cradled in walls of copper panels that create a dramatic and welcoming environment for our visitors.

Architects from the national firm of Hammel, Green & Abrahamson (HGA) designed the glass and steel structure with a nod to early Native American architecture. Similar to an earthlodge, the lobby has twenty poles, but the visitor's personal imagination may also visually capture the silhouette of a tipi or grain bin. The steel geometry will be clearest at night with special lighting. Around the top of the glass box, backlit screens will project colorful images of the Northern Lights against a night sky.

Embedded in the center of the lobby floor, a five-foot diameter glass circle with a lighted image of the Great Seal of ND becomes the hearth of the building. A starburst pattern radiates from this center circle. Also embedded in the floor, in a circle around the perimeter of the lobby, are the names of all 53 North Dakota counties.

The architectural benefits are even greater than the lobby's size. “This area is also uniquely related to North Dakota with the symbols and structure embracing key elements of our state. It is an iconic beacon welcoming visitors to North Dakota and the Capitol grounds.”

The Northern Lights Lobby will also be available as a rental space for after-hours events and functions.
First New State Museum Gallery to Open in October

Can you imagine North Dakota 500 million years ago? On Oct. 12, 2013, the public will be invited to travel back in time during the opening of the Adaptation Gallery: Geologic Time in the State Museum. This will be the first of four new galleries to open in the expansion project.

Geologic events on Earth transformed the environment many times. From the monstrous sea creatures living in primordial oceans to the rise and extinction of dinosaurs, from tropical swamplands with crocodiles and palm trees to the appearance of mammals, this is the fascinating story of life in North Dakota. The Geologic Time gallery will explore these changes with exciting new exhibits for visitors of all ages. Visitors will experience five major themed areas of the gallery including:

• Underwater Worlds
• Mammals on the Savanna
• Extinction, Climate Change and Tropical Swamplands
• When Dinosaurs Ruled
• The Great Ice Age

This gallery is a collaborative effort of the State Historical Society of North Dakota and the North Dakota Geological Survey. Almost all of the fossil specimens in this new gallery are from the NDGS state fossil collection.

We invite you to come with us on a journey through time to explore how life has changed and adapted in North Dakota’s geologic past.

Treehouse Gallery Being Planned to Delight Young Children

The Treehouse Gallery will be a museum space designed especially for children – a place where play and learning go hand in hand. The Treehouse will introduce pre-school through third-grade visitors to the museum world. Scaled in size for children, the entertaining hands-on activities will also relate to exhibits in other areas of the State Museum. Located on the mezzanine above the Missouri River Events Center, this glass-enclosed gallery will invite children to discover and explore North Dakota life, past and present.

The Treehouse will feature its namesake, a child-sized tree house children can climb into for a bird’s-eye view of the area before sliding down to a variety of exhibits including main street businesses, a steamboat, a locomotive, a flight simulator, and horses.

Historic Preservation Efforts

Renovations Help Preserve Historic Stutsman County Courthouse

Several restoration projects at the historic Stutsman County Courthouse last year moved this landmark one step closer to serving as a regional interpretive center, a venue for public hearings and meetings, and a facility to interpret significant topics for both North Dakota citizens and visitors. The projects were made possible through a combination of state and private funding. The Historic Stutsman County Courthouse Committee committed $58,900 toward the project with the remainder of funds coming from the state.

Just over $150,000 was devoted to removal of lead-based paint, asbestos, and carpeting, which was acting as a catalyst for the growth of mold. The grounds were landscaped and re-graded to prevent moisture seepage into the building. This continues the partnership between the 1883 Courthouse Committee and the State Historical Society of North Dakota to ensure the preservation and adaptive reuse of this outstanding architectural style.

Constructed in 1883, the historic Stutsman County Courthouse is one of only two remaining brick courthouses of the Gothic Revival style in the state. It is recognized as one of the finest Gothic Revival style buildings in the Upper Midwest and contains the finest complete collection of pressed tin in the state. The building served as a meeting place on several occasions for discussions regarding the formation of the State of North Dakota. Many immigrants took the oath of allegiance to the United States and were pronounced citizens of the United States of America in the building.

The courthouse was the brainchild of Enos Stutsman, a behind-the-scenes power broker who was one of the earliest pioneers in Dakota Territory. He was a member of the Territorial Council that established the original territorial capitol in Yankton. Stutsman served as speaker of the 1876 Territorial Legislature. After North Dakota gained statehood in 1889, Stutsman County was named for Enos Stutsman.

Rehabilitation efforts of the courthouse will continue during the next biennium, depending on funding. Plans are to install a concrete floor with drain tiles in the basement. The existing wood flooring and the historic tiles would be installed above the concrete floor. Other projects include installing a mechanical system and eventually an elevator. “The exterior of the building was restored in the early 1990s and is in wonderful condition,” said Fern Swenson, director of Archaeology and Historic Preservation division. “The time is right to move forward on restoration of the interior so this architectural monument comes back to serving the people of the state.”

Fort Abercrombie State Historic Site Bank Stabilization Project

Spring 2013 visitors to Fort Abercrombie State Historic Site, Richland County, will notice completion of the impressive bank stabilization project and the significant site preservation efforts sponsored by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, St. Paul District, in collaboration with the Archaeology and Historic Preservation Division of the State Historical Society of North Dakota.

ND Students Compete in National History Day

National History Day competitions were recently completed in North Dakota. This year’s theme was Turning Points in History: People, Ideas, Events. Regional competitions were held in March in Bismarck and Minot, and regional participating groups were also organized in Williston and Valley City. The state competition was held April 5 at the Bismarck School District Career Academy. Winners of the state competition may advance to the national contest at the University of Maryland June 16-20.

Pictured here are four students who won a senior group performance at the state competition in Bismarck. The performers presented a debate between Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady on the voting rights implications of the 14th Amendment to the US Constitution. Additional characters in the performance were a narrator and a newspaper reporter of Anthony and Cady’s time. Autumn Red Bear, McKenna Tree Top, Kylee Harrison, and Cherise Standing Bear all attend the Standing Rock Community Grant School in Fort Yates. The coach for this performance was Vernon Huber, who teaches at Standing Rock.

Historic Site Supervisor Q & A

Visitors to our state historic sites sometimes ask questions about the maintenance and preservation of certain areas like, “Doesn’t that desk need a coat of paint?” Johnathan Campbell, site supervisor of the Former Governors’ Mansion State Historic Site in Bismarck, offers a viewpoint regarding historic preservation and restoration.

I often get visitors asking why we don’t strip the paint from the exterior, refinish scratched trim, or even replace elements because they are simply worn from the hands of time. The kitchen floor in the Former Governors’ Mansion is an example I use all the time with tours. It has dings, shrunk boards, burns, and holes all over the place, and each one tells a story about the house. The sink sat here; the icebox leaked here; coals from the first oven burned the floor. Each mark tells a story, if you know how to read it. Those stories would be lost if the floor was replaced or sanded to perfection.

We did have the floor sanded a few years ago and finished with a coat of polyurethane to protect from further wear. I worked very closely with the contractor to make sure he did not remove any of the stories the floor told simply by its existence. He wanted to sand, fill, and replace boards to make the floor look as perfect as possible. I’m not sure he ever did fully understand, but he did do what was asked of him.
North Dakota Studies Launches New Website

The North Dakota Studies program at the State Historical Society has launched a new website at ndstudies.gov. The new website is simple to navigate and easy to use. The website provides information on the many publications and resources for grades 4, 8, and high school, and directs users to supplemental resources. The site not only provides publications and teaching resources for North Dakota Studies, but also offers additional materials related to the study of North Dakota.

“Whether you desire to know more about the Civil War Era in North Dakota, seek information about the USS North Dakota, or simply want to become familiar with North Dakota’s state symbols, the website provides a destination for students, teachers, and lifelong learners wanting to explore the interesting geography, history, and culture of our state,” said Neil Howe, North Dakota Studies program coordinator.

In addition, dozens of primary source documents from the State Archives at the SHSND are available at the new site complimenting the high school textbook, North Dakota: Readings about the Northern Plains State. In fall 2014, the website will also allow users to access the new Grade 8 curriculum, North Dakota: People Living on the Land.

Neither Snow, Nor Sleet, Nor Rain...

Snowfall and cold temperatures of winter 2012-2013 created some interesting challenges for outlying sites. On January 12, a wall of snow required Kerry Finsaas, assistant supervisor of Fort Berthold and the Missouri-Yellowstone Confluence Interpretive Center, to carve out a pathway for visitors.

Visiting at the 2013 Volunteer Valentine’s Social were three members of the team developing a new 8th grade online curriculum for North Dakota Studies, to be completed in fall 2014. Gwyn Herman, Neil Howe, ND Studies coordinator, and Laverne Johnson also collaborated on the 4th grade ND curriculum and teacher activities.
Three Properties Added to National Register of Historic Places

Three new properties have been added to the National Register of Historic Places in North Dakota.

1. Last fall, Theodore Roosevelt’s Elkhorn Ranch and Greater Elkhorn Ranchlands was listed as nationally significant for the role the ranch played in forming Theodore Roosevelt’s ideas on conservation.

2. The Woodrow Wilson School in Fargo was listed both for its Collegiate Gothic architecture by the local firm of Haxby and Braseth and for how the design and use demonstrated new ideas for education in the Progressive era.

3. The most recent listing is the Swedish Zion Lutheran Church, located near Bottineau. This stone church has been maintained as a local landmark and symbol of the Swedish pioneer settlement.

Enter the Second Annual Photo Contest

The first SHSND Photo Contest last year was so successful that another contest will be held this year. The subject for the 2013 contest is “Theaters in North Dakota.” Entries will be accepted from May 1 until December 31, 2013.

As with any new project, we learned a few things along the way and have made a few tweaks to the contest. Rules are available by contacting Lisa Steckler at lsteckler@nd.gov or 701.328.3577, online at history.nd.gov/photocontest/ or by writing to: State Historical Society of ND, c/o Lisa Steckler, 612 E Boulevard Avenue, Bismarck, ND 58505.

Berg Wins Excellence Award

Claudia Berg was awarded the 2012 Staff Award for Excellence at the agency’s annual holiday gathering. This honor is given each year to a State Historical Society employee selected by his or her colleagues as the agency’s outstanding staff member. Berg is the expansion and new initiatives coordinator for the Society. Among other things, this means she spends much of her time acting as an intermediary and coordinator between the Society and the contractors for the building expansion.

Claudia began her employment with the agency in September 1981 as a graphics designer. Her initial responsibilities with the Society involved working with the design and construction of the exhibits in the Main Gallery of the Heritage Center. She has also worked as a curator of exhibits, as the Museum division director, and director of the Museum and Education division. Congratulations to Claudia!
ND Heritage Center Expansion Tours Highlight Legislative Reception

Supporters were in high gear at the January 10 legislative reception at the North Dakota Heritage Center, just as the 2013 Legislative Assembly got underway. The evening reception was well attended, with around 460 guests, including some 65 legislators. The event was sponsored by the State Historical Society of North Dakota (SHSND) and its Foundation, the Independent Community Banks of North Dakota (ICBND), and the North Dakota Grocers Association.

Highlights included special guided tours of the new North Dakota Heritage Center main level, with SHSND staff providing visitors with a glimpse of the exciting progress being made on the $52 million expansion project. Tour groups were led by ICBND assistant vice president Wendy Ruud and staff, and the management team of Dan’s SuperMarkets of North Dakota, led by Ralph Dockter and Dalles Schneider. Featured on the mezzanine level were design concepts for the children’s Treehouse Gallery, the North Dakota Studies curriculum project, an electronic touch table that will be part of the Hub of History, and the video, The People of the Upper Missouri: The Mandans, produced by the SHSND.

“Staff is the soul of the project – the animating force that will help make the story of the state come alive.” — Merlan E. Paaverud, Director, SHSND

Governor Jack Dalrymple and Congressman Kevin Cramer spoke at the event, and letters from Senator John Hoeven and Senator Heidi Heitkamp were read. Other speakers included ICBND Board President Brenda Foster, senior vice president, First Western Bank and Trust of Minot; ICBND Emerging Leader Dave Mason, American Bank Center of Bismarck; and North Dakota Grocers Association Chairman of the Board Leon Merck, general manager, Marketplace Stores of North Dakota.

The reception was catered by The Bistro – An American Café, Dan’s SuperMarket South, and Central Market, all of Bismarck.

The State Historical Society and Foundation thank our partners – the North Dakota Grocers Association and Independent Community Banks of North Dakota – for their financial support, for helping with the tours and greeting guests at the reception. We thank Society staff who enthusiastically shared the vision for the new building. And we especially thank the North Dakota legislators who came to see the building they authorized. This night was for you!

The State Historical Society and the Foundation also thank the trustees and donors who attended the event. You have carried the message of expansion over the past decade to our legislators and out into our communities. From this base of strong support this project was funded for the people of our state. We are grateful.

People of the Upper Missouri: The Mandans

Focusing on the history, traditions, and material culture of the Mandan people, this documentary integrates historical imagery, interviews, and ethnographic and archaeological data that trace 800 years of Mandan resilience, adaptability, and continuity in the Upper Missouri River Valley. It begins with a contemporary portrait of the Mandan, Hidatsa, and Arikara people and travels backward recounting the tragedy and loss incurred by construction of the Garrison Dam; the peak of Mandan population, power, and prosperity during the 16th century; and the origins of a cultural identity bound in memories of ancestors and tied to the Missouri River landscape. 77 minutes. DVD or Blu-ray $24.95

Lieutenant G.K. Warren’s 1855 and 1856 Manuscript Maps of the Missouri River

This series of 39 oversized reproductions of maps drawn on the Missouri River provides insight into the natural and cultural environment of the river more than 150 years ago. They were created by surveyors of the Warren Expedition in 1855 and 1856 and used in the creation of an 1859 map of the Plains region. For the first time, these original hand-drawn manuscript maps are published as a unit available to the public. They contain a wealth of previously unavailable information about the Missouri River environment from what is now the Kansas-Nebraska border to the confluence of the Missouri and Yellowstone Rivers. Reproduced in a portfolio of map sheets measuring 16 by 24 inches, the publication includes an introduction by Graham A. Calloway and W. Raymond Wood. $39.95

Join us in November at Bismarck State College to examine the milestones of President John F. Kennedy’s one thousand days in office, and the legacy of those three years.

One of our keynote speakers is native North Dakotan Clint Hill, the courageous Secret Service agent who leapt onto the back of the presidential limousine in the midst of the assassination on November 22, 1963. Fifty years later, Clint Hill tells his story - how a Secret Service agent who started his life in an orphanage became the most trusted man in the life of First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy.

Hill’s incredible story of courage, integrity, and resilience is one of the many compelling Kennedy stories that will be shared in November as part of The Kennedy Legacy: 50 Years Later.

Other symposium topics include:
• Kennedy in North Dakota
• Cold War
• Warren Commission
• Conspiracy theories
• A Kennedy concert by the Bismarck Mandan Symphony Orchestra

Save the date and watch for additional information at Kennedylegacy.org.

Brought to you by Bismarck State College, Lewis & Clark Fort Mandan Foundation, and the State Historical Society of North Dakota.
Our Mission:
To identify, preserve, interpret, and promote the heritage of North Dakota and its people.

International Tourism Award

Pembina State Museum was recognized in April as the recipient of the International Tourism Award as part of the Governor’s Travel and Tourism Awards. Located one mile from the Canadian border, the Pembina State Museum becomes a destination point for American and Canadian visitors. Congratulations to the Pembina State Museum staff on this recognition as an outstanding leader in North Dakota’s tourism industry!

Jeff Blanchard, Pembina State Museum supervisor, shows the Tourism award.
